	Description: My client the Outback steak house is has leased this space for a number of years. Recently they thought they had a water leak coming from and HVAC unit because the acoustical ceiling was sagging. After further investigation it was discovered that there was not a leak but there was a major structural issue with the members supporting the HVAC unit above. Outback decided to hire a engineer because they realized the severity of the situation and it was discovered that prior to them being a tenant the original headouts and supports for the units were undersized and not properly installed causing a major failure of these structural components. Since the ceiling was attached to the above structural and this structure was sagging the ceiling also began to sag which was the reason for the original assumption of the water leak. The structural engineer has since provided drawings and calculations to remedy this situation and upgrade the structural members to carry the load of the HVAC units. In order to perform this work we will need to remove the HVAC units in (5) locations, remove the roofing and plywood in these areas and install structural components from above on the roof top to avoid having to disturb or create more work within the actual restaurant. After the structural repairs are made there will be some minor roofing patches. After the patches are made the HVAC units will be reset and reconnected to the existing power and gas supplies.
